

Clark Miller

Clark A. Miller is Professor and Director of the Center for Energy and Society at Arizona State University. His research examines the social drivers, dynamics, and outcomes of regional energy transitions. He is a member of the National Academies Committee on Accelerating Decarbonization in the United States.